

Peter Soulainman Bangura's Bio

Peter Soulainman Bangura is a seasoned social development expert specializing in education, health, and renewable energy, with a focus on advancing socioeconomic growth and improving livelihoods for rural communities. He holds an M.Phil. in Development Studies from Njala University and boasts over a decade of experience in project planning, monitoring and evaluation, data analysis, and stakeholder engagement. Peter has provided consultancy services for prominent organizations, including UNICEF, UN Women, ECREEE, and Africa Clean Energy (ACE), leading impactful initiatives in renewable energy, health, and gender equality. Formerly the Director of the Demographic, Health, and Social Statistics Division at Statistics Sierra Leone, Peter has led high-profile projects such as the 2013 Demographic and Health Survey and the 2015 Population and Housing Census. Renowned for his expertise in social research, project management, and data-driven decision-making, Peter excels in fostering collaboration across diverse cultural and organizational settings to achieve sustainable development outcomes.